

The Anderson-Seay Co.'s Store Telegraphs Congratulations to Harding

By the time you read this a telegram of congratulations will have been received at the Harding home at Marion, signed by the members and employees of this store, reading as follows:

"Congratulations Warren G. Harding. May the value you give to America be as radiant as the victory America gave you. We are shoulder to shoulder with you to make and keep Pascagoula and the United States the two best places in the world to live in."

We want our future President to know that we are back of him and banking on him to pilot the ship of state thru an administration of peace, prosperity and plenty and that this store and the folks in it are going to work harder than ever to preserve that spirit of Americanism that permeates every piece of merchandise that carries our label.

U. S. Land Office at Jackson, Miss.,
August 31, 1920.

Notice is hereby given that William Charles Prouse, whose postoffice address is Ocean Springs, Miss., R. R. M. A., did, on the 14th day of June, 1920, file in this office sworn statement and application No. 98462, to purchase the lot 4, section 32, township 6 south, range 6 west, St. Stephens Meridian, and the timber thereon, under the provisions of the act of June 3, 1878 and acts amendatory, known as the "Timber and Stone Law," at such value as might be fixed by appraisement, and that, pursuant to such application, the land and timber thereon have been

WORDS MADE BY ANIMALS

Many of These in Common Use Can Be Traced to Domestic and Wild Beasts.

Monkey-tricks, a combination used nowadays to mean practical jokes, is quite new, but the prefix "monkey" is very old.

The boatmen on our canals call a small barge a monkey-barge, and the mechanic calls the adjustable spanner in his tool kit a monkey-wrench. The step of a bus on which the conductor stands is known as the monkey-board.

A bat-call is a tin whistle, and a cat's paw the medium who does another's dirty work. Catskins are the flowers of the willow, and cat-lap is weak tea.

Our friend the dog is rather badly used. We speak of dog-roge, dog-briar, dog-wheat, dog-grass, dog-eared, and each epithet implies inferiority.

The word "horse" is also used to imply inferiority, roughness, coarseness. A horse-laugh is a vulgar guffaw; a horse-chestnut is the poisonous acid soil as distinguished from the sweet chestnut; while horse-play is rough play such as 'Arry and 'Arriet indulge in.

The commonest use of the prefix "horse" is in connection with "power." It is commonly referred to as "h. p.," and is the universal unit of comparison between steamships, motorcars, locomotives, etc.

The fox enters a good deal into common speech. We call shamming "foxing," and a crafty man is "an old fox," but why a certain dance should be called a fox-trot one cannot say.

The fox suggests the hare, and that timid animal also has its use in language as well as in soup. A man who is as mad as a March hare is said to be "hare-brained." The harebell is one of our prettiest flowers, but the possession of a hare-lip is generally thought to be the result of the interference of some malicious spirit at birth.

Then we have the "cat-f-love" of the very young man, and the "sheep-eyes" of the very coy maiden, the pig-iron of the forge, and the pig-tail of the flapper.—London Tit-Bits.

Locust Plague of 1915.

A very severe locust plague that visited Palestine and Syria in the spring of 1915 proved a blessing in disguise for the British armies. The locusts ravaged the country from the borders of Egypt to the Taurus mountains, consuming every green thing. Vegetables and fruit disappeared as if by magic.

The shortage of all kinds of fodder was a most serious matter and greatly operated against the movement of the Turkish forces on the Egyptian fronts. When the locusts were first seen in Jerusalem, attention was drawn to them by the sudden darkening of the bright sunshine. The destruction wrought by the pests was enormous, more especially as the Garden of Gethsemane was stripped.

The streets of Jerusalem were carpeted with masses of insects. When anything approached, says John W. Whiting, United States vice consul at Jerusalem, in the Wide World, it seemed as if the entire surface of the ground moved, producing a most curious effect on one's vision, and causing dizziness, which in some cases was so severe as to produce a sensation not unlike seasickness. When fall came the country was cropless, even olive groves having been destroyed.

Most Efficient Light.

Fame and fortune await the scientist who discovers the secret of the familiar firefly or lightning bug. No one has been able to tell how the little insect produces the flashes of light we see twinkling about us on dark nights. Careful scientist tests have proven, however, that this light is produced with about one four hundredths part of the energy which is expended in the flame of a candle. Considering the strength or rather feebleness of the firefly this light is believed to be the most efficient form of illumination known today. If this method could be understood and put to work it is calculated that the energy exerted by a boy in driving a bicycle would be sufficient to run a powerful dynamo or light many miles of street lamps. The light of the firefly is practically heatless and it is believed among scientists that the future of the lighting industry of the world depends upon the discovery of a heatless light.—Boys' Life.

"A. E."

Darrell Figgis in his book on "A. E." (George Russell, the Irish writer and mystic), explains the pen name thus: "Waiting at one time a new pen name, he subscribed himself as Aeon. His penmanship not at all times being the most legible, the printer deciphered the first dipthong and set a query for the rest; whereupon the writer, in his proof sheets, stroked out the query and stood by the dipthong." Since then, however, Mr. Russell has abandoned the dipthong and prints his pen name as two separate letters.—St. John Ervine in the North American Review.

Confidence.

What can defeat a strong man who believes in himself and cannot be ridiculed, talked down, or written down? Self-reliance is the best capital in the world.

Self-depreciation is a crime. If others can do such wonderful things, why can't I? He can who thinks he can.—Orison Swett Marden.

GOT NO CREDIT FOR SONG

How Thomas A. Beckett Wrote a Version of "Hail Columbia" and Another Man Claimed It.

There are three patriotic songs known as "Columbia," and there is not always as much care in distinguishing them as there should be, the Philadelphia Record remarks.

In "Songs That Every Child Should Know" Dolores Bacon has included "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," which she credits to Dr. Timothy Dwight. That eminent man, so closely identified with the history of Yale, wrote another "Columbia."

"Columbia, Columbia, to glory arise, The queen of the world and the child of the skies."

Both "Hail Columbia" and "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean" are Philadelphia products, though the tune of the former, known before Joseph Hopkinson set the words to it as "The President's March," has a somewhat obscure and disputed origin. Both of these songs were born on the stage; they were written for the benefit of actors. An actor named Fox appealed to Hopkinson to write some verses that he could sing to "The President's March," and the result was "Hail Columbia," produced in 1798.

Thomas A. Beckett, whose son of the same name died last year, wrote to Adm. Preble an account of his composition.

"In the fall of the year 1843, being then engaged as an actor at the Chestnut street theater in Philadelphia, I was waited upon by D. T. Shaw (then singing at the Chinese mission) with the request that I would write him a song for his benefit night. He produced some patriotic lines and asked my opinion of them. I found them ungrammatical, and so deficient in measure as to be totally unfit to be adapted to music. We adjourned to the house of a friend (R. Hartford) and I then wrote the two first verses in pencil, and at Miss Hartford's piano I composed the melody. On reaching my home I added the third verse, wrote the symphonies and arrangements and made a fair copy in ink and gave it to Mr. Shaw, requesting him not to give or sell a copy."

Shaw, however, procured its publication by Willig of Philadelphia as a song "written, composed and sung by David T. Shaw, and arranged by T. A. Beckett, Esq." A. Beckett asserted his rights and obtained their admission, but "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean" has often been published as Shaw's work.

Another Crime Charged to Rat.

The rat, already perhaps the most unpopular of all living creatures, earns a fresh odium from the discovery that it may be responsible for the spread of cancer. Of the rats brought from a certain sugar refinery to the laboratory of Professor Ebinger, of Copenhagen, many were found to have cancer of the stomach, and investigation has tended to show that this resulted from eating the cockroaches with which the refinery is infested. A nematode worm was discovered as a parasite of the cockroaches, the female being one and one-half to two inches long and one-two-hundred and fiftieth inch in diameter, while the male is only half as large. A number of rats fed on these cockroaches and on the eggs of the parasite developed inflammations and cancer of the stomach. Of rats fed on the eggs, 116 which developed gastric affections included 14 that died in 30 to 40 days without developing cancer, and 54 that eventually died from quite typical cancer of the stomach. The tumors all continued to increase in size as long as life lasted.

Not Dobbin.

The little boy of the farm was showing the visitor, who happened to be a literature teacher in one of Indiana's higher institutions of learning, over the farm. He commented often, but sometimes not as wisely as a farmer would have commented on the points of interest. They happened to pass a field in which was an animal whose place has partly been usurped by the auto industry. He leaned against the fence and gazed on the sight. "Poor Dobbin, your day of usefulness is over," he sighed. "No doubt a shining new silver has taken your place."

"No, sir," the little boy offered information. "Her colt hurt his foot in the pasture yesterday, so dad left it in the barn today while she grazed."

The destruction of property willfully is vandalism; the tearing up of bridges and fences is hoodlum. Both are punishable.

The auxiliary schooner Winnie Davis, entered this port Wednesday evening for a consignment of buckets for Kiln, Miss., lumber firm.

Three torpedo destroyers sold to the Mexican government for patrol service, put in to port Wednesday night from Pensacola bound to a Mexican port.

Mr. J. H. Welsh with the Hodge Ship Co., came to our port Wednesday. He reports the safe arrival of the S. S. Nika at Santiago and the return from Havana of Mr. O. E. Hodge. Mr. Hodge, who resides in New Orleans, reports commercial conditions greatly improved in Cuba.

The Bridge Club was entertained on last Saturday afternoon at the hospitable home of Mrs. E. B. Martin, who was hostess to the club and a number of guests. Lovely autumn flowers and ferns interspersed by gay Halloween emblems added their charm to the attractive rooms in which were placed five tables for the players. During the three interesting games of auction refreshing fruit punch was served and following the games a delicious plate luncheon of fruit salad, cheese sandwiches, olives, and sherbet was served by Mrs. Martin assisted by her two attractive little daughters Jean and Peggy. The club prize, a lovely brown willow flower basket filled with beautiful cosmos, was won by Miss Hattie Belle Meriwether, and the guests' prize, a beautiful silver doriane was won by Mrs. T. B. Kell. The guests participating in the delightful afternoon with the club members were Mrs. J. A. Tabor, Mrs. J. H. Williamsen, Mrs. T. B. Kell, Miss Mamie Canty, Miss Adele Krebs, Miss Katherine Denny, Mrs. King, Miss Edith Lloyd, Miss Estelle Watkins. At the business meeting of the club held just before the end of the meeting Miss Mamie Canty and Miss Bailey were elected members to substitute the members who have recently resigned.
